Charlie Small Gorilla City – Fronted Adverbials

Here is a short extract from Charlie's journal. Unfortunately, Charlie has not used any fronted adverbials. Your task is to rewrite the extract adding in fronted adverbials to make it more interesting and to give us more information about what happened. Do not forget to add in commas too!

Are there any other ways that you can improve it? Have a go at adding in some ambitious vocabulary, adjectives, adverbs and conjunctions as you rewrite it.

I woke up and had more bananas for breakfast. I really am fed up of eating them. I went for a walk and found Grip and Grapple. We played in the trees. They taught me how to play a game called Gorilla Tag. It was great fun. I saw some other animals like parrots and snakes. There were butterflies fluttering around us. I felt tired so I went for a nap. I heard a loud noise. I got out my cage and climbed down the tree to have a look. It was Thrak. He had come back to say sorry for his behaviour. The other gorillas were not happy to see him. I think they prefer me being King! Thrak begged for forgiveness. We decided that we were better off without him. Thrak then left. I hope that we never see him again. I had my tea, which was more bananas and wondered if I would ever eat anything else again. I sat in my cage and thought about how good it was to be here on my adventure.
